

Another 50bp Bank of Canada cut, but smaller moves lie ahead

The Bank of Canada cut its policy interest rate 50bp at a second meeting in a row. Inflation is already at target, growth is disappointing and excess supply in the economy is growing. This will justify further rate cuts ahead but at a slower pace in 2025, having already loosened policy by 175bp since June

Tiff Macklem, governor of the Bank of Canada

3.25% Canada overnight rate

Growing economic slack prompts a second consecutive 50bp rate cut

Bank of Canada has cut its policy interest rate 50bp to 3.25%, as expected. Last week's surprise jump in unemployment to 6.8% from 6.5% helped cement the call, but inflation is also already at target, justifying a swifter move towards neutral rates than in other countries. In this regard the accompanying statement suggests that third-quarter activity was weaker than expected and the fourth quarter is also set to disappoint.

Canada inflation and unemployment rate

Source: Macrobond

After some big moves 2025 will see smaller, less frequent rate cuts

They suggest recent immigration controls will lower 2025 GDP relative to expectations, but there will be a limited inflation impact. There will be other temporary factors that will impact the numbers from a technical perspective, such as a sales tax holiday, but the BoC will "look through" these. The BoC are also worried about President Trump's proposed tariffs on Canadian products as this will increase "uncertainty and cloud the economic outlook".

The BoC summarise the situation as one where inflation is at target, there is excess supply in the economy and where the growth numbers are disappointing expectations. They've cut the policy rate 175bp since June and state more cuts are coming, but that "with the policy rate now substantially lower, we anticipate a more gradual approach to monetary policy if the economy evolves broadly as expected". From now on we expect the central bank to move in smaller 25bp steps, perhaps just once per quarter, with rates reaching 2.75% by early second quarter 2025.

Author

James Knightley

Chief International Economist, US

james.knightley@ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.