

Asia Morning Bites

Australian March and first-quarter 2024 inflation and a no-change decision from Bank Indonesia due

Asia Morning Bites

Source: shutterstock

Global Macro and Markets

- Global Markets: US Treasury yields dropped slightly yesterday as the manufacturing PMI dropped into contraction territory and a strong auction for USD69bn of two-year Treasuries buoyed prices. There is a USD70bn 5Y auction today and a USD44bn 7Y auction on Thursday. 2Y yields fell 4.0 basis points to 4.931%, though the yield on 10Y bonds fell just 0.8bp to 4.60%. US equities made further gains. A tech rally helped the S&P 500 rise 1.2% and the NASDAQ rose 1.59%. Chinese stocks were mixed. The Hang Seng rose 1.92%, but the CSI 300 fell 0.7%. EURUSD jumped back up to 1.0702 overnight in response to the softer-than-expected PMI figures. Other G-10 currencies have also made gains against the USD, though the JPY hasn't seen much lasting benefit and is still 154.77. Other Asian FX didn't do a lot yesterday but should gain in early trading today.
- G-7 Macro: The US manufacturing PMI for April fell from 51.9 in March to a contractionary reading (though only just) of 49.9. There was a small decline in the employment index, which dropped 0.3 points to 51.9. New orders were also slightly lower. The service sector PMI also declined from 51.7 to 50.9, though it remained consistent with expansion. Stronger service sector activity helped push up the Eurozone composite PMI, although the manufacturing series dropped further into contraction. Today's macro calendar is light.

Germany's Ifo survey kicks things off. We also get the preliminary March US durable goods orders data.

- Australia: We look for the monthly March CPI inflation reading to remain unchanged at 3.4% YoY today. This would be the fourth consecutive month at that rate if so. While that sounds like inflation progress has stalled, we had expected inflation to be somewhat higher at this stage of proceedings thanks to unhelpful base effects, so we remain optimistic that the Reserve Bank of Australia is still on track to reach its target without further rate hikes.
- South Korea: Consumer confidence has held up relatively well despite the weak performance of asset markets and tight monetary conditions. In April the composite index stayed at 100.7 for a second month and remained above 100 for the fourth consecutive month - presumably as election-related uncertainty has dissipated. Consumer spending plans slipped a little, but views on house prices turned more optimistic. The resilience of consumer sentiment adds upside risk to our GDP forecast. Meanwhile, the BoK's closely watched inflation expectations fell to 3.1% from 3.2% last month. It is good to see that this has eased. However, it remains above 3% and needs to fall to the mid-2% level to give the BoK some confidence.
- Japan: March services producer prices rose 2.3% YoY (vs revised 2.2% February and 2.1% market consensus). The monthly change also accelerated for a second month, signalling that inflationary pressures in Japan are still building.
- Indonesia: Bank Indonesia (BI) will likely opt to pause again today, retaining the 7-day reverse repurchase rate at 6%. Despite the expected pause, we could get a more hawkish statement from BI Governor Warjiyo. BI will likely show willingness to hike further if necessary but we expect Warjiyo to highlight efforts to support the currency via their presence in the spot market. BI will likely extend their pause well into the second half of the year with potential rate cuts only surfacing should pressure on IDR abate.

What to look out for: Australia CPI and BI policy

- Australia CPI (24 April)
- Bank Indonesia meeting (24 April)
- US durable goods (24 April)
- South Korea GDP (25 April)
- Japan leading index and department store sales (25 April)
- Hong Kong trade (25 April)
- US initial jobless claims, GDP and personal consumption 1Q (25 April)
- Japan Tokyo CPI (26 April)

- Australia PPI (26 April)
- Singapore industrial production (26 April)
- US personal spending, Univ of Michigan sentiment and PCE core (26 April)

Author

Min Joo Kang

Senior Economist, South Korea and Japan

min.joo.kang@asia.ing.com

Nicholas Mapa

Senior Economist, Philippines

nicholas.antonio.mapa@asia.ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.