

Mario Draghi: The opening statements in review

With Mario Draghi's time as ECB President approaching an end, it is time to reflect on his tenure. Communication is always key for central bankers, but for Draghi, his speeches will likely be considered his defining moments. Comparing his introductory statements to those of his predecessors, a few things stand out

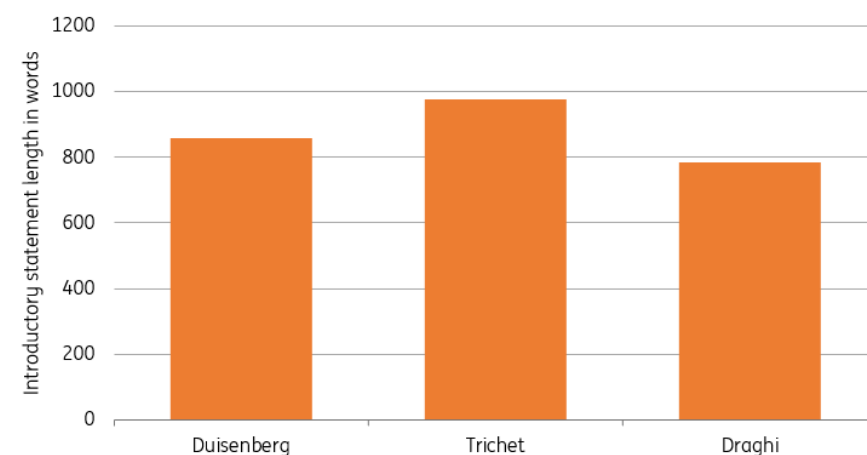

ECB President Mario Draghi delivers a speech at the European Parliament in Strasbourg back in January

Less is more

Compared to Jean-Claude Trichet, the press conference opening statement has become shorter under Draghi. Draghi may have taken note from Shakespeare's Henry V: "men of few words are the best men". The length of the statement has returned to that of the first ECB President, Wim Duisenberg.

Draghi's introductory statements were a lot shorter than those of Trichet

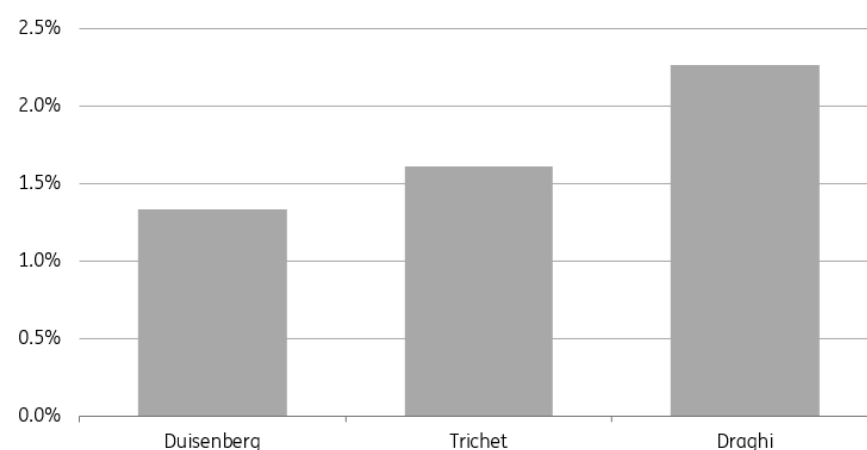

Source: ING

Key themes

While it is often argued that Draghi interpreted his mandate liberally, especially in northern countries, he has actually been rather narrowly focused on monetary topics in his communication. According to our topical communication indices, Draghi has focused more on the inflation target in his communication than his predecessors, with more mentions of monetary themes than Trichet and Duisenberg in their opening statements. Those terms dominate the introductory speeches of all three presidents though, with more frequent mentions than other themes like economic growth or financial stability.

Draghi has spoken more about monetary issues than his predecessors

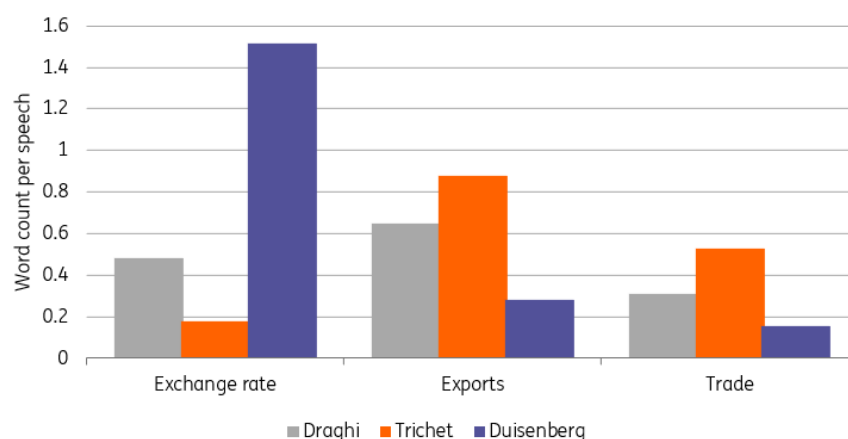

Source: ING

Quality over quantity

Even though trade wars are top of mind at the end of Draghi's term, external competitiveness is not necessarily top of mind for the ECB at the moment. Draghi has discussed the euro much less in his term, particularly compared to Duisenberg, and even though the single currency has been tested like never before under Draghi, the euro has not come to the forefront in his speeches much at all. Compared to Duisenberg's term, when external competitiveness of the eurozone was a hot topic, Draghi has barely mentioned the euro. Then again, it's perhaps not about quantity but the quality of his remarks on the single currency. His historic speech in 2012 that the ECB would do 'whatever it takes to preserve the euro' will be a hard one to top...

The focus on exchange rates has become smaller over time

Author

Bert Colijn

Chief Economist, Netherlands

bert.colijn@ing.com

Carsten Brzeski

Global Head of Macro

carsten.brzeski@ing.de

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.