

Watch: What people really think of cryptocurrencies

Our latest ING International Survey shows stark differences in sentiment towards cryptocurrencies. While a minority are enthusiastic about their future, most people have little understanding of how crypto works and are yet to see its relevance to their everyday lives

Crypto curiosity but not at the expense of cash

If cryptocurrencies are going to gain trust and acceptance, they need to become part of the mainstream financial system instead of being a niche interest of the few, according to the latest ING International Survey.

Watch video

The video's based on our latest ING International Survey. Click here to read it.