

Happy Earth Day

President Xi will virtually join President Biden's Earth Day leaders climate summit, with Xi's speech likely to call for no borders to green technology transfer - similar to comments he made in a European summit recently.

Source: Shutterstock

Happy Earth Day speech

At today's Earth Day leaders' summit hosted by US President Biden, most people will probably be more interested to hear if the US commits to tougher emission targets, which it has widely flagged, with the consensus forming around a 50% reduction in US emissions by 2030 and targeted net-zero emissions by 2050.

China has already pledged to achieve net-zero emissions by 2060. But the participation of President Xi of China in today's summit shows that on some issues, not many admittedly, but at least on climate change, there is room for China and the US to cooperate.

In a virtual climate summit in Europe last week, President Xi was highly critical of the EU's plans for a carbon border tax, and at the Boao forum a few days ago, he suggested making investment in green technology a defining characteristic of the Belt and Road Initiative. We would anticipate a re-run of these messages today. So in short, cooperation, tinged with criticism.

Not much expected from ECB today

The US dollar has been fairly steady against the Euro in recent days, as well as Asian currencies, and we don't expect the ECB meeting today to alter that perception particularly.

It's a week old now, but a note by our Global Head of Macro and European rates strategist on the likely outcome and market impacts of this meeting is well worth a read if you have time. And hotter off the press, a further note without FX strategists hones in on the FX ramifications of the meeting in a handy crib sheet.

The market consensus (and our view) is that the envelope of the PEPP (Pandemic Emergency Purchase Programme) will be topped up by EUR500bn and run through to its scheduled end in June 2021. But there are various bells and whistles that might be attached, and these could result in some market surprise. With markets currently fairly calm, but growing noises out of the ECB hawks arguing against extending the PEPP even as the pandemic rages in Europe, as the first of the linked notes states, there is "very little to gain, only to lose".

Asia quiet, G-7 quiet

It's very quiet on the Asia macro calendar today. Unemployment rates from Taiwan and Hong Kong mark the likely high spots in terms of economic releases today, which I think says it all.

It's not much busier in G-7 space after yesterday's Bank of Canada excitement, as they signalled the beginning of their taper and a sooner than anticipated first rate hike (second half of 2022 now flagged), though this does not seem yet to have spilt through into other markets, though that is not to say it will not do so in the weeks ahead.

US existing home sales for March is the G-7 pick of the day, with a slight slowdown in the annual rate of purchase to 6.11m expected by consensus.

Author

Robert Carnell

Regional Head of Research, Asia-Pacific

robert.carnell@asia.ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.