

Briefing Romania

Holiday mood

➔ EUR/RON

We saw sideways trading yesterday in EUR/RON around the 4.7600 level on thin volumes. And pretty much the same is expected for today, despite recent gains posted by regional peers against the single currency.

↓ Government bonds

The government bond yield curve was little changed, with the market already in Easter holiday mood. The 10Y yield stood flat at 4.95% mid.

Money market

Funding rates stood unchanged at around the 3.35% mid implied yield. Some paying interest emerged up to two weeks, pushing yields some 30-35 basis points higher on expected large budget payments and holiday funding distortions ahead of a large 29 April bond redemption. The rest of the curve was little changed but still inverted with 3M at 4.25% and 1Y at 4.10% mid implied yields.
