

Germany: Another fiscal bang

The German government agrees a €130 billion package to kickstart the economy

German Chancellor Angela Merkel at the Hannover Industry Fair earlier this year

It took two long days of negotiations but last night the German government presented the next phase of its unprecedented fiscal stimulus. Up to now, the impressive fiscal stimulus had been mainly aimed at cushioning the imminent impact of the Covid-19 crisis and limiting the economic fallout. Last night's stimulus package is now aimed at kickstarting the economy.

Details of the fiscal stimulus package

The €130bn (almost 4% of GDP) stimulus package includes more than 50 different measures. In our view the most relevant are the following:

- VAT will be temporarily cut from 19% to 16%, from 1 July until 31 December
- The lower VAT rate for hospitality will be reduced from 7% to 5% over the same period
- An additional one-off child allowance of €300 per child
- A €50bn fund to address climate change, innovation and digitisation within the German economy. From this €50bn, a doubling of the financial incentive to buy electric cars from €3,000 to €6,000 will be financed
- Social security contributions will be capped at 40%, at least until 2021, to stabilise net income. Additional costs for social security will be covered by the government.
- Tax loss carrybacks and faster depreciation rules for investments are intended to provide more liquidity and investment incentives for companies

- Another liquidity and loan support programme of €25bn for small and medium-sized companies for June to August. Eligible companies will be those which saw sales drop by 60% or more year-on-year in April and May
- At least €10bn will be used to help municipalities struggling with lower tax receipts, with public spending on infrastructure and housing.

According to finance minister Olaf Scholz, the package will be partly financed by additional net new borrowing. Some €60bn of the €156bn in new debt approved in March had not been tapped, yet.

Since the start of the crisis, the German government has agreed on fiscal support and stimulus measures amounting to more than 30% of GDP. Within these measures, cash-out fiscal stimulus amounted to more than 5% of GDP. Last night's package adds another 4% of GDP, making Germany's fiscal reaction to the crisis quite outstanding. It is not only the size of the packages which is remarkable but also the fact that the German government has made a complete U-turn in its approach to fiscal policy. This not only the case for Germany but also for Europe. From austerity champion to big spender. Just a few months months ago, such a comment on German fiscal policy would have been almost unthinkable.

Author

Carsten Brzeski

Global Head of Macro

carsten.brzeski@ing.de

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.