

Hungarian wages are still rising

The almost double-digit wage growth continues in Hungary, but the public sector is slowing the pace of growth. Expect a fierce debate around minimum wage in 2021

Source: Shutterstock

8.8%

Average gross wages (YoY)

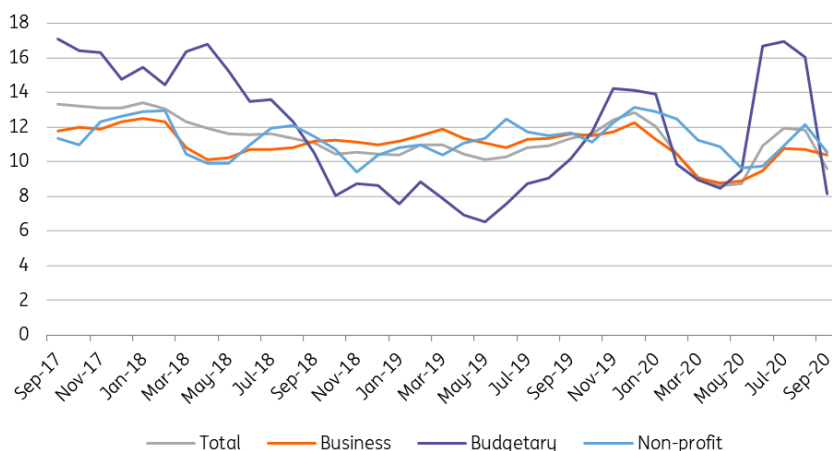

Previous 9.1%

Hungarian gross and net wages rose by 8.8% year-on-year in September, depicting the slowdown since the summer. This data is much closer to the underlying wage dynamic, which we can trace with regular wage growth. Wages without one-off premiums and bonuses increased by 8.6% YoY in September.

The slowdown in wage growth is mainly due to the phasing-out of the one-off increases in the healthcare sector while the previous wage settlement is now in the base. This means that wages in healthcare were up by only 3% YoY in September. In contrast, salaries in the education sector rose by double-digit as the new round of wage settlements kicked in.

Against this backdrop, public sector wage growth came in at 6.5% YoY, which is still not bad in a pandemic but the lowest growth rate since April 2019.

Wage dynamics (3-month moving average, % YoY)

Source: HCSO, ING

Private sector wages remained more or less unchanged from the previous month showing a 9.8% YoY figure in September.

According to the Statistical Office, construction sector and professional, scientific activities showed an above-average increase, but wage growth remained decent in retail and manufacturing.

Wage negotiations have just started and are facing several hurdles

The storyline has remained the same: composition effect, wage settlements in the public sector and “legacy” wage growth in the private sector shape wage dynamics this year.

A huge gap ahead

Going forward, we expect a fierce debate between employees and employers when it comes to the minimum wage in 2021.

The negotiations have just started and employees want to see a 10% increase, while corporates are suggesting no increase due to the crisis. There is an agreement in place between the government and employers (made in late 2016) which says real wages will increase by 6% on a yearly basis and then social contribution tax will be further cut by 2ppt.

These recommendations and agreements are likely to cause serious tensions as they don't take into account the fact that each sector bears the burden of the crisis differently.

Against this backdrop, next year's nominal wage growth could be around 5-6% if we are optimistic.

Author

Peter Virovacz

Senior Economist, Hungary

peter.virovacz@ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.