

Indonesia's central bank keeps rates on hold to steady the currency

Bank Indonesia keeps its policy rates at 5.75% in a move to shore up the rupiah

Indonesia's central bank governor Perry Warjiyo

5.75%

Bank Indonesia 7-day reverse repurchase rate

Policy rate

As expected

BI on hold for 4th straight meeting

Bank Indonesia (BI) kept policy rates at 5.75%, extending its pause for a fourth straight meeting. BI retained its growth outlook for GDP to settle between 4.5-5.3%YoY and expects growth to remain robust going into the second half of the year. BI also expects the current account to fall between 0.4 to -0.4% of GDP for 2023, with robust exports still proving a reliable source of foreign currency inflows.

The bank's decision to pause was likely in line with their directive to ensure FX stability, with the IDR coming under renewed pressure in recent weeks. On the other hand, price pressures have moderated somewhat, with both headline and core inflation coming off their respective peaks and they're heading back to target.

The central bank announced it would be extending its “operation twist” of selling short-term bonds to help attract foreign portfolio flows to support the local currency.

BI likely to extend pause even as inflation moderates

Source: Badan Pusat Statistik and Bank Indonesia

BI likely entering an extended pause

BI extended its pause for another meeting to ensure ample support for the IDR, which is down 1.6% this month. With inflation now clearly headed back toward target, future BI decisions on policy will likely hinge on the currency's stability in the coming months. Ongoing talks over the US debt ceiling and uncertainty over the Fed's policy direction will likely go unresolved in the near term, suggesting pressure on the IDR could continue for a little longer.

So we expect BI to remain on hold for the next few meetings to shore up the IDR before considering a reduction for its key policy rate. In the meantime, we expect the central bank to continue efforts to stabilise the currency while also ensuring ample liquidity to support the healthy expansion of bank lending.

Author

Nicholas Mapa

Senior Economist, Philippines

nicholas.antonio.mapa@asia.ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. (“ING”) solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.