

Indonesia: Trade figures show signs of strain

Markets may be less bothered by softer-than-expected trade figures for September as reports suggest that Sri Mulyani Indrawati will continue as finance minister under the new administration

6.44%

Export growth YoY%

Down from 6.56% (revised down)

Lower than expected

Exports and imports both weaken

Indonesia's September trade figures missed market expectations, with exports and imports falling in USD from the previous month, and annual growth rates falling. August's export numbers were also revised lower.

Exports in September fell to USD 22.1bn, a fall of USD 1.5bn. Imports were also softer, falling USD 1.8bn from the previous month to USD 18.82bn.

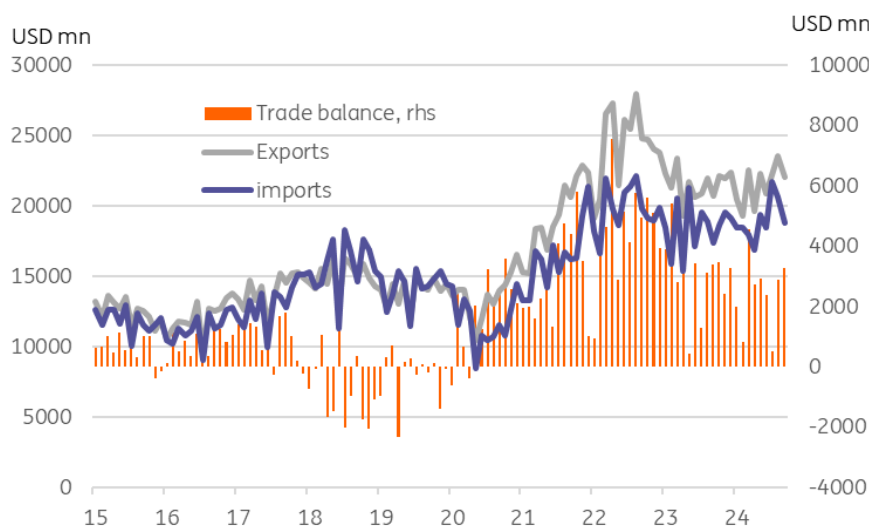

Newswires have focussed on the fact that both exports and imports are still rising in year-on-year terms and also on the fact that the trade surplus has grown slightly (it has edged up to USD 3.26bn from USD 2.9bn in August).

However, markets did not register much enthusiasm for these figures, which likely reflect the very difficult global demand environment for many of Indonesia's commodity-heavy exports, and the IDR was weaker before and immediately after these numbers.

From August, non-oil exports to the rest of ASEAN were much weaker, mainly due to a sharp (13.99%) fall in exports to Thailand. Exports to the other major countries including China, the US, South Korea and Japan were also much weaker (-8.34%). Exports to Europe were still slightly positive (1.36%).

Indonesian trade breakdown (USD mn)

Signs point to Indrawati remaining Finance Minister

Of more interest to markets, may be reports that suggest Sri Mulyani Megawati, the Finance Minister under President Jokowi, is considering working in the same role under President-elect Prabowo Subianto.

Global markets have a high regard for Megawati, who is considered a steady hand on the economy, at a time when there are some concerns about Prabowo's fiscal credentials. These concerns have been one of the principal sources of IDR weakness in recent months, following Prabowo's plans to provide free meals for school children.

Nothing seems to be firmly agreed upon yet, and may not be until Prabowo is inaugurated on 20 October after which there should be more clarity on the rest of the cabinet, and by extension on what we might expect from Prabowo as President. In the meantime, Bank Indonesia, which meets tomorrow, will likely seek to steer a steady course by leaving policy interest rates at their current level of 6.0%.

Author

Robert Carnell

Regional Head of Research, Asia-Pacific

robert.carnell@asia.ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. (“ING”) solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user’s investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.