

Norges Bank green lights March rate hike

Norway's central bank is poised to hike rates for the third time this March. Rising oil prices and the higher global interest rate environment suggest policymakers will hike a total of four times this year. This is a medium-term positive for the krone

We still think two or three cuts are possible this year in Norway, as inflation could ease back in the coming months

Norges Bank set to hike in March and four times overall in 2022

Norges Bank has kept Norway's key interest rate at half a percent this month. But following a time-honoured tradition, it has formally given the green light to another rate rise at the March meeting. It made similar statements of intent ahead of both the September and December rate rises last year.

None of this is that surprising, not least because the central bank was already forecasting at least three rate rises this year in its latest projections from December. It's worth remembering that Norges Bank tends to set policy more mechanically than most. And based on pretty much all of the usual factors that feed into the Bank's model, it looks like the next projection due in March will show both a faster pace of rate rises, and potentially a higher terminal rate, too.

Oil prices have moved higher along with global interest rates, both of which are traditionally hawkish factors for Norway's central bank. Likewise, as policymakers acknowledged in the latest statement, unemployment has undershot projections, while underlying inflation is pushing higher.

We, therefore, expect Norges Bank to signal a total of four 2022 rate hikes at its meeting in March, and there's little reason to doubt that will happen.

FX: Norges Bank remains a medium-term positive for NOK

Today's Norges Bank statement means markets can remain confident that the Bank is sticking to its plans to hike rates at least three more times this year. Monetary policy remains a bullish factor for Norway's krone in an environment where we expect markets to reward those currencies that can count on hawkish central banks.

Unlike other instances in the G10, NOK's money markets have not moved aggressively in overpricing monetary tightening by the domestic central bank, and the current pricing matches Norges Bank's projected rate path. This means that, should NB see a need to hike at a faster pace, the benefits would entirely be passed on to NOK.

The recent good performance of oil prices continues to shield the currency from swings in risk sentiment. As soon as market sentiment stabilises, NOK's attractive yield and benign external drivers point towards further appreciation in our view. We expect EUR/NOK to slip below 9.90 in 1Q, and to reach 9.50 by year-end.

Author

James Smith

Developed Markets Economist, UK

james.smith@ing.com

Francesco Pesole

FX Strategist

francesco.pesole@ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.