

Romania: 2Q18 GDP growth surprises to the upside

Flash estimates show Romanian GDP rising 1.4% in 2Q18 versus the previous quarter and 4.2% year-on-year. The rebound was stronger than expected but makes the official government forecast of 5.5% GDP look far too optimistic and our forecast of 3.5% marginally pessimistic

Source: Shutterstock

Growth above consensus

Flash 2Q18 GDP data shows the sequential quarterly growth at 1.4% versus 0.1% in 1Q18, which translated into 4.2% year on year growth.

The print is above our call of 3.4% and Reuters consensus of 3.8% and comes in line with the latest central bank expectation for the quarterly pace of growth which is “anticipated to regain traction” compared 1Q18. This will make the output gap to “re-embark on a slightly upward trend” but still lower than previously forecasted.

Economic sentiment points to moderation

Source: EC, NIS, ING

Drivers are likely to be the same

Private consumption has most likely remained the growth driver while on the supply side we expect decent (but not extraordinary) contribution from services and industry, in line with the recent high-frequency data. Agriculture could also yield some surprises but gauging the impact of recent unusual weather conditions (draught in late spring affecting wheat crops and heavy rains and floods in the first two months of the summer), and the recent outbreak of African swine fever is quite cumbersome.

With the growth in Germany surprising on the upside, external demand should remain solid and compensate for a decline in domestic demand.

Consumer confidence stabilising

Source: EC, NIS, ING

While the detailed breakdown is due on 7 September, today's flash data makes the official government forecast of 5.5% GDP growth for 2018 look far too optimistic.

Also, our 3.5% forecast appears marginally pessimistic now. We see the full 2018 growth closer to 4%, and risks are broadly balanced. From the monetary policy stance, "a somewhat slower reduction in the degree of accommodation" is expected, which could keep household spending afloat, while policy (in)consistency will play an ever greater role on economic sentiment, as two electoral years are approaching.

Author

Valentin Tataru

Chief Economist, Romania

valentin.tataru@ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.