

Romanian economy lost speed in 2023

Romania's fourth quarter GDP increased by 2.9% last year compared to the same period in 2022, despite contracting by 0.4% versus the previous quarter. Numbers exceeded the consensus estimates for the annual growth and likely leave many in wonder about the quarterly data. We maintain our estimate of 2.8% GDP growth for 2024

The Dambovită river in Bucharest, Romania

As this is a flash release, we don't have any other data except for the overall growth numbers. Details are to be published on 8 March.

In annual terms, the gross numbers show that the economy accelerated in the last quarter of 2023, which is broadly in line with most of the hard-frequency data we have at hand. Indeed, the last months of 2023 saw a mild revival in consumption, as retail sales expanded by 2.1% in the last quarter. This also translated into a reversal of the timid improvements that were visible in the trade balance throughout the year. At the same time, industrial production tempered its annual contraction while construction activity remained robust, likely closing the year with a double-digit advance. After posting the large positive surprise in the third quarter, the agriculture sector is unlikely to have had a meaningful contribution again.

We remain somewhat puzzled by the quarterly seasonally adjusted data which indicates a 0.4% contraction of the economy, and we believe that the number is likely to be revised upwards at the future prints. On this note, we continue to put more emphasis on the gross series, given the known mismatches between the gross and seasonally adjusted series.

What we make of it

The 2.0% real GDP growth in 2023 is somewhat better than recent expectations, but well below potential and it confirms National Bank of Romania's latest assessment of further contraction of excess aggregate demand. This will continue into 2024 for which we maintain our 2.8% GDP growth estimate, as the public investment engine is likely to get some help from private consumption as well. Monetary policy easing might help in the second half of the year, but in our view, the bigger issue is that GDP growth rates of 4.0-5.0% – that were business as usual just a short while ago – might become daring targets in the future.

Authors

Valentin Tataru

Chief Economist, Romania

valentin.tataru@ing.com

Stefan Posea

Economist, Romania

tiberiu-stefan.posea@ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.