

Snap | 14 July 2022

SINGAPORE

Singapore: MAS surprises with further tightening as inflation continues to head higher

The MAS did not waste time tightening further to fight off surging inflation

Source: Shutterstock

MAS moves ahead of schedule

The Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) surprised markets today by tightening policy ahead of the scheduled October meeting in a bid to quell stubbornly high inflation. The MAS re-centred the policy band to “prevailing levels” to allow more appreciation for the currency but refrained from adjusting the slope and width of the band.

Despite several tightening measures rolled out in the past few months, inflation has continued to surge with both core and headline inflation moving past multi-year highs. Core inflation, the preferred price gauge of the MAS, touched 3.6% in May, the fastest pace seen since 2008, and is expected to head higher. The MAS adjusted forecasts for both headline and core inflation for the year, predicting core inflation to settle between 3-4% this year, up from their previous forecast of 2.5-3.5%.

The surprise MAS decision overshadowed the 2Q GDP report today which showed growth missing estimates to settle at only 4.8%YoY.

SGD pulled higher to combat inflation

Source: ING, CEIC

Inflation to stay hot suggesting the MAS could tighten further in October

Despite the flurry of tightening by the MAS, inflation has continued to heat up. We were not all that surprised to see another off-cycle tightening by the MAS as short-end rates have clearly signalled an intention to keep the currency on the stronger side. But we had expected the adjustment to happen after an inflation data release.

Surging price pressures are driven by a mix of supply side and demand side factors, pointing to inflation heating up further in the near term. With forecasts pointing to even higher inflation prints down the road, we consider it likely that we will see further action by the MAS at the October meeting.

The SGD will be supported by today's policy tightening, but with overall sentiment remaining pressured, immediate benefits may be hard to spot.

Short term rates show MAS' intent (3m SIBOR)

Source: Bloomberg

Author

Nicholas Mapa

Senior Economist, Philippines

nicholas.antonio.mapa@asia.ing.com

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.