

Snap | 28 October 2020

THAILAND

Thailand manufacturing is recovering slowly

The fifth straight monthly rise in production in September underscores recovery. But growing political uncertainty clouds prospects

Source: Shutterstock

-2.8%

September manufacturing growth

year-on-year

Better than expected

A slow grind upward

Thailand's manufacturing activity continued to improve in September. A 3.3% month-on-month rise in output after the 5.1% MoM rise in August - making it the fifth consecutive monthly increase reflecting a gradual recovery.

So far the sector has clawed back 90% of the plunge it suffered in April at the height of the Covid-19 outbreak. But the index is still 2.8% below its level seen a year ago, though it's a marked improvement over -9.1% YoY in August and a small annual decline since the onset of the negative trend in early 2019.

The good news is that things are improving, but the bad news is that the path is going to be rough given growing downside risk to the economy from ongoing political turmoil.

Where manufacturing goes GDP follows

Source: CEIC, ING

Politics dampens recovery

3Q20 manufacturing growth of -8.3% YoY was a sharp improvement from -20.0% in 2Q, which supports our forecast of a smaller 3Q GDP decline, -8.2% YoY instead of -12.2% in the previous quarter. The persistently weak service sector and seasonal agriculture weakness, however, impart downside risk to our 3Q GDP view (data due in mid-November).

Without the return of tourists and a vigorous export recovery, there is no imminent end to the negative growth trend. Adding to the weak trend is an escalation of political tensions recently, which not only undermines economic confidence but also holds back implementation of macro policy stimulus.

Surprisingly, the Thai baht isn't doing as bad as one would have expected it to in this environment. The currency has been steady around 31.20 against the USD for most of the month and, with 1.8% month-to-date appreciation, it's the second-best performing Asian currency in October.

That said, we aren't confident of the currency's lasting resiliency to the political jitters. We maintain our forecast of weakness to 32.30 by year-end.

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit www.ing.com.