

Turkish Central Bank to stay on hold

We expect the Central Bank of Turkey to keep its one-week repo rate on hold at 24% and continue to be cautious in signalling rate cuts

Source: shutterstock

In its rate setting meeting on 25 April, we expect the CBT to keep its one-week repo rate steady at 24% amid macro uncertainties and recent currency volatility. We think the bank will remain cautious in signalling any rate cuts and in fact, we do not rule out more hawkish messages in its accompanying statement. The CBT will likely maintain a tight stance in the post-election period and avoid any premature policy rate adjustment to maintain price stability and support financial stability.

Cost of CBT Funding vs TRY

Source: CBT, ING Bank

Last month, concerns about financial stability increased on the back of:

1. A drop in FX reserves. Net foreign assets of the CBT (difference between FX assets that track gross reserves including gold and FX liabilities) dropped from US$28.9 billion in early March to US$19.4 billion on 22 March, despite a relatively small external deficit and the Treasury's significant borrowing of US$6.4 billion this year.
2. Evidence of a further increase in residents' FX deposit holdings. Given elevated inflation and low real return in TL investments (i.e. TL deposits), residents have increased their FX deposits by US$30 billion since September, mostly driven by households. This takes the share of FX deposits to 54% of the total as of the beginning of April.

The CBT tightened its liquidity policy by suspending funding of the banking sector through the one-week repo rate (at 24.0%) and directing efforts to the ON lending (at 25.5%) with a 150 basis point adjustment in the effective cost of funding.

CBT Reserves (US$ bn)

Source: CBT, ING Bank

To support FX reserves, the CBT also cancelled FX deposits against TL deposit auctions and increased banks' transaction limits in the swap market to 40% of their pre-determined FX market transaction limits from 10%, in three separate moves. Accordingly, the CBT's net FX reserves have improved to US$23.5 billion as of 15 April, reflecting the impact of these measures on FX assets.

Following a normalisation in financial markets, the CBT started one-week repo auctions again on 8

April, readjusting the effective cost of funding to 24%. But the bank continues to monitor the performance of the lira as any sharp currency weakening and consequent FX pass-through would pose significant upside risks to the inflation outlook. As of March, annual inflation was flat while core inflation continued to decelerate. In the period ahead, exchange rate developments will be key, though the current economic backdrop, with ongoing weakness in domestic demand and base effects, will remain supportive. We should not rule out the likely impact from a marked deterioration in pricing behaviour and inflation expectations.

Interest Rate Differential btw FX and TRY Deposits

Source: CBT, TurkStat, ING Bank

On the fiscal front, the budget performance has shown a deterioration in the first quarter due to continuing weakness in tax generation and strong growth in primary expenditures. Weak economic activity and spending pressures, along with the ongoing uptrend in interest expenditures, pull the 12-month rolling budget deficit above the target set for 2019 in the New Economy Program.

The reform package announced by Finance Minister Berat Albayrak focuses on maintaining fiscal discipline. It reiterates the government's commitment to budgetary discipline and pledges reforms in key areas like taxation, social security, unregistered economy etc. The package also focuses on boosting savings, strengthening the financial sector and facilitating disinflation. Implementing all of this successfully will be instrumental to improving confidence and delivering reductions in risk premia and long-term interest rates.

Central Administration Budget Primary Balance (%)

Source: Ministry of Treasury and Finance, ING Bank

Against this backdrop, we don't look for a policy rate change in the April MPC and do not expect a rate cut in the first half of the year. Depending on the performance of the lira, a moderate monetary easing may be on the agenda in the second half, likely in the last quarter.

Author

Muhammet Mercan

Chief Economist, Turkey

muhammet.mercan@ingbank.com.tr

Disclaimer

This publication has been prepared by the Economic and Financial Analysis Division of ING Bank N.V. ("ING") solely for information purposes without regard to any particular user's investment objectives, financial situation, or means. ING forms part of ING Group (being for this purpose ING Group N.V. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies). The information in the publication is not an investment recommendation and it is not investment, legal or tax advice or an offer or solicitation to purchase or sell any financial instrument. Reasonable care has been taken to ensure that this publication is not untrue or misleading when published, but ING does not represent that it is accurate or complete. ING does not accept any liability for any direct, indirect or consequential loss arising from any use of this publication. Unless otherwise stated, any views, forecasts, or estimates are solely those of the author(s), as of the date of the publication and are subject to change without notice.

The distribution of this publication may be restricted by law or regulation in different jurisdictions and persons into whose possession this publication comes should inform themselves about, and observe, such restrictions.

Copyright and database rights protection exists in this report and it may not be reproduced, distributed or published by any person for any purpose without the prior express consent of ING. All rights are reserved. ING Bank N.V. is authorised by the Dutch Central Bank and supervised by the European Central Bank (ECB), the Dutch Central Bank (DNB) and the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM). ING Bank N.V. is incorporated in the Netherlands (Trade Register no. 33031431 Amsterdam). In the United Kingdom this information is approved and/or communicated by ING Bank N.V., London Branch. ING Bank N.V., London Branch is authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and is subject to regulation by the Financial Conduct Authority and limited regulation by the Prudential Regulation Authority. ING Bank N.V., London branch is registered in England (Registration number BR000341) at 8-10 Moorgate, London EC2 6DA. For US Investors: Any person wishing to discuss this report or effect transactions in any security discussed herein should contact ING Financial Markets LLC, which is a member of the NYSE, FINRA and SIPC and part of ING, and which has accepted responsibility for the distribution of this report in the United States under applicable requirements.

Additional information is available on request. For more information about ING Group, please visit <http://www.ing.com>.